Southall

Due to the destruction of the Charles City records it is impossible to learn of the early generations of this family. When the first book begins there are two grown men then living in the County, Sasey and John Southall who were the progenitors of the family in the state. John Southall was appointed Deputy Sheriff at the August Court in 1739. ~~His first wife was Elizabeth, who was evidently a Meredith for they see John Backhurst and his wife Tom for a settlement of the estate of Sampson~~ His first wife died prior to 1748, for in this year a marriage contract is filed between John Southall and Sarah Talbot. The last will and Testament of John Southall was presented Oct 3, 1750 by John Southall, the executor named, with Richard Kennon becoming his security on a bond of two thousand pounds. There are suits on file in Amelia that prove John, James and William Southall are his children, and since the name Holman appears among their children it is reasonable to believe that the Holman was also a hatter.

Address Mr. James Southall, Amelia.

Petersburg, May 28, 1793.

Sir:

As Mr. Gilliam had but a few suits in Amelia about the time, that Dancey recovered a judgment against you as security for John Southall I think it highly probable he must remember more of the business than I can at this distance of time and therefore it would be most proper that his evidence should be had in the suit now depending. I recollect he requested me to settle a judgement he had received agt. you as attorney for Dancey, I think it was and that I afterwards paid the money to him, but at the distance of 35 years back, my memory will not serve me so as to recollect particularly the sum. I think the judgement obtained against you, will alone be a sufficient voucher to support the charge which you make against John Southall's estate and the person who alledges it has never been paid ought to prove it, after so long a standing. I am Sir,

Your very hon. Servant,

T. G. Peachy.

(John Gilliams deposition not filed)

James Southall complains of William Southall administration of all ----- goods, chattles and credits of John Southall decd., of a plea of trespass in the case, for that whereas the said John Southall in his lifetime to wit ---- on the day --- at the Parish and County of sd. was indebted to sd. WILLIAM B. SOUTHALL

W.B. Southall, Former Editor, Dies in Hospital

William Baxter Southall, for nearly 30 years widely known in Virginia as a newspaperman and as a former associate editor of The Times-Dispatch and of "The Commonwealth" magazine, publication of the State Chamber of Commerce, died early today at a local hospital after a long illness. He was 53 years of age.

The funeral will be at 10 A. M. Monday at the Joseph W. Bliley Funeral Home. Interment will follow in Arlington National Cemetery.

Mr. Southall, who was widely related among distinguished Virginia families, was born June 7, 1891, in Halifax County and was a son of the Rev. William Wood Southall and Mrs. Jane Moseley Southall.

H-S GRADUATE

As a boy he was a pupil at the Cluster Springs Academy and later entered Hampden-Sydney College, where he was graduated.

Mr. Southall entered newspaper work, in 1915, on the staff of The Times-Dispatch. In 1917 he resigned from this position to join the United States Marine Corps as a volunteer. He served overseas and was wounded. Returning to Virginia he rejoined, after his recovery, The Times-Dispatch staff, serving as a political writer, columnist, city editor and editorial writer until 1937.

In World War I he was wounded at Belleau Wood in France and was awarded the Purple Heart.

Former Editor, Dies in Hospital

Mr. Southall, who was widely related among distinguished Virginia families, was born June 7, 1891, in Halifax County and was a son of the Rev. William Wood Southall and Mrs. Jane Moseley Southall.

H-S GRADUATE

As a boy he was a pupil at the Cluster Springs Academy and later entered Hampden-Sydney College, where he was graduated.

Mr. Southall entered newspaper work, in 1915, on the staff of The Times-Dispatch. In 1917 he resigned from this position to join the United States Marine Corps as a volunteer. He served overseas and was wounded. Returning to Virginia he rejoined, after his recovery, The Times-Dispatch staff, serving as a political writer, columnist, city editor and editorial writer until 1937.

In World War I he was wounded at Belleau Wood in France and was awarded the Purple Heart.

For a time he was connected with the University of Virginia in publicity work and with the Richmond Virginian.

He was at one time the writer of special articles for the Virginia Conservation Commission and acted as Capitol correspondent for several State papers.

He also was widely known as the author of the column which he contributed for a number of years to The Times-Dispatch under the name of "Father Byrd."

Mr. Southall, as a reporter of the sessions of the General Assembly of Virginia, enjoyed a wide acquaintance among leaders in the State's public life and was known as an accurate and gifted writer. It was because of this connection as a political writer that he was called "Senator" Southall by many of his friends.

EDITOR OF MAGAZINE

It was in 1937 that he became associated with the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce as associate editor of its publication, "The Commonwealth."

His last journalistic connection was with The Virginian-Pilot, of Norfolk. The connection continued until he became ill last Fall.

Surviving Mr. Southall are his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Cocke Southall, and five brothers, Frank T., Jack M. and Valentine W. Southall, all of Richmond; Patrick Henry Southall, of Baltimore, and Warrant Officer Joseph W. Southall, United States Army.
